Garage sales go high tech on Saturday

CHRIS GRIFFITH The Australian April 30, 2012 8:27AM 3 comments

THE traditional garage sale will go high tech this Saturday through a website that coordinates local activities across Australia.

Shoppers looking for a bargain can locate garage sales at The Garage Sale Trail website, and use a TrueLocal mobile application to map and track sales in their neighbourhood according to their preferred shopping categories.

PayPal, which is partnering the event, is encouraging Garage Sale Trail shoppers to pay for goods using PayPal rather than cash.

Spokeswoman Rachel Botsman said the micro-enterprise sought to combine the power of mobile Apps, PayPal and social media to enhance its success and widen the scope across Australia.

"We are just in the nascent stages of figuring out how to use the force of the internet to create meaningful connections in the real world, connections that will help us create stronger communities. The Garage Sale Trail is a brilliant example of this happening,' she said.

"The beauty of technology is it makes Collaborative Consumption much easier by creating the efficiency and trust for ideas like the Garage Sale Trail to scale."

This year's Garage Sale Trail ambassadors are; Dave Rastovich, Angus Stone, Marnie Skillings, Kate Langbroek, Corinne Grant, Tracey Spicer, Ed Curnow, Sibella Court, Liane Rossler, Brendan Moar, Jay Laga'aia and Rachel Botsman.

IT MAY be the only garage sale where you can buy rare white-label Beatles records, a fairy floss maker and an apartment.

Tomorrow, more than 6000 households across the country will be opening their garages and inviting strangers in to flick through their records, try on their dated clothes and eat snacks.

"The first Bondi Garage Sale Trail was an overwhelming success and fun way to celebrate community, sustainability and creativity. As we take it national, we are working with 27 councils including the City of Kingston, and the City of Yarra," said Garage Sale Trail Executive Director Darryl Nichols, "We are fired-up to see how the good people of Melbourne interpret the Garage Sale Trail and give it their own unique spin."

Welcoming the Garage Sale Trail, Sustainability Victoria CEO Anita Roper said, "Garage sales are a great way of re-using our precious resources so that they don't end up in landfill." Anita said her dream garage sale find would be "a signed football jersey from the Fitzroy football team which won the 1944 Premiership against Richmond."

"By using Google Maps, mobile phone technology and social media to share information, the Garage Sale Trail brings together communities all over Australia, not just online but more importantly enabling neighbors and communities to meet up in the real world, " said Author of What's Mine is Yours: The Rise of Collaborative Consumption, Rachel Botsman.

Garage Sale Trail

Sat 05 May 2012 , Activities, Around Town, Fairs & Festivals, Melbourne, Shopping

First published on 26 Apr 2012. Updated on 6 May 2012.

It's time to throw that garage sale you've been talking about for decades. Time to shed from the shed. Time to bridge the divide between garage and garbage. Time to get your hoard above board. Time to turn trash into treasure. Etc.

Garage Sale Trail is launched in Melbourne on Saturday May 5, wth residents being urged to declutter their homes and make some cash – all the while reducing the crap we send into local landfills.

The scheme was initiated in May 2010 by two Bondi-based, cage-rattling creatives appalled at the hard rubbish blighting their neighbourhood. They asked locals to collect their unwanted stuff for sale on one day.

That first response was fantastic: 126 garage sales staged, an average of $750 in sales per stall and 15 shipping containers worth of "junk" off the streets.

Garage Sale Trail

We want to go to Marnie Skilling's Garage Sale. If you live in Sydney, you can. The rest of us will just have to make do with the hundreds - potentially thousands - of other garage sales happening around the country as part of the second national Garage Sale Trail on May 5th. With just over three weeks until the event, there's still plenty of time to register your details and join.

Crop ... Jewels Bowering, Tenzin, 5, and partner Scott Strong. Photo: Marco Del Grande

JEWELS BOWERING started growing food a couple of years ago to feed her two sons "as naturally as possible". Now, depending on the season, you'll find crops ranging from tomatoes to Madagascar beans and snowpeas to pawpaw - as well as three much-loved chickens - in the modest patch outside her Bondi home.

Ms Bowering has joined forces with more than 150 backyard "farmers" in the Waverley area through a project called Grow It Local. Gardeners register their patches at the Grow It Local website and Facebook page and share tips, tricks, seeds and cuttings.
